DAY ONE

CAEN HILL

Crofton Beam Engines

Caen Hill is one of the greatest examples of canal engineering in England and is a great place to start your journey along this historic canal. Hire a boat at Devizes from the Kennet & Avon Canal Trust or from one of the many operators that are listed with the Canal and River Trust. Alternatively, you could start a little further east along the canal and hire a boat with Honey Street Boats and on your return from Kintbury you could do an extra leg to Devizes and then back to Honey Street. This round trip is about 55 miles and includes 56 locks and you could easily do it all in a week.

Have lunch at Honey Street Café or at the Waterfront Bar and Bistro by Pewsey Wharf then follow the towpath to Crofton Beam Engine – the oldest working beam engine in the world – and the Enginemens Rest Café.

Further along the trail you come to Wilton Windmill, built in 1821, it is the only working windmill in Wessex. Just a few miles further along the canal is the Three Tuns Freehouse pub in Great Bedwyn.

DAY TWO

HUNGERFORD

Spend the day exploring the lush green water meadows of the market town of Hungerford with its quirky canal bridges and famous antique shops. A great place for lunch is the Tutti Pole, a quaint restaurant on the high street selling everything from lights snacks to a full

English Breakfast served all day, three-course meals and afternoon teas. The name Tutti Pole derives from the ancient traditions of Hocktide, an English ceremonial rite dating back to 1365 and is still celebrated in Hungerford each year, when, on the second Tuesday after Easter, two tithing men visit the homes of commoners carrying Tutti poles dressed with spring flowers. There are replica Tutti poles outside the restaurant, while inside there are many photographs of the Hocktide celebrations through the years.

Alternatively, you could take a day off your own boat and go on a popular half-day round trip on the Rose of Hungerford boat, travelling east from Hungerford Wharf through Dun Mill Lock Wire Locks.

DAY THREE

COBBS FARM SHOP

If you need to stock up on supplies during your trip on the canal, head to the wonderful Cobbs Farm Shop, just outside Hungerford, which has just about everything you could possibly need, including freshly baked bread, honey, preserves and chutneys, cheese, dairy, flour, eggs, cereals, tea, smoked fish and meats, juices and biscuits. From Hungerford, you can travel along the canal on to Kintbury Bridge 75 from where you'll turn around and return to Devizes. Before you do, have lunch at the Dundas Arms – a wonderful riverside pub by the pretty village of Kintbury.

DID YOU KNOW?

- Caen Hill (produced 'cane') is one of the longest continuous flight of locks in England with a total of 29 locks rising 237 feet over 2 miles, with a 1 in 44 gradient.
- Over 8 million people in England live within one mile of a canal.
- The Bruce Branch of the Kennet and Avon Canal Trust runs canal holidays for disabled, disadvantaged or older people – along with their family, friends or carers. Its purpose-built, wheelchair accessible boats are based at Great Bedwyn Wharf near Hungerford from where you can cruise east to Hungerford, Newbury and Reading, or west through Bruce Tunnel and Honeystreet and on to the Caen Hill Flight at Devizes.
