DAY ONE

DEVIZES

Follow the Kennett & Avon Canal towpath all the way from Bradford on Avon to the market town of Devizes. The route is 12 miles of traffic-free cycling with boatyards and canalside pubs en route. Heading east from Bradford on Avon, you pass Trowbridge and Hilperton and then Semington. Then continue past Seend Cleeve and Martinslade before arriving at the stunning Caen Hill Locks - a spectacular set of 29 locks enabling boats to get up and down the waterway; it's one of the greatest examples of canal engineering in England. Shortly after passing the locks you come in to Devizes where you can stop at Devizes Wharf for a slice of homemade cake at the tea room, or for something more substantial head to The Peppermill on St John Street for first-class British cuisine - there are six bedrooms here, should you wish to stay over, alternative you then cycle back to Bradford on Avon. Overnight Dine at The Boat House then spend the night at Woolley Grange, a beautiful Jacobean manor-turned-hotel just on the outskirts of Bradford on Avon.

DAY TWO

SALISBURY PLAIN & WESTBURY

This is the longest ride of the three days - a round trip of almost 40 miles (62km). Head east along the Kennet & Avon towpath to Staverton then head over for a coffee at the Field Kitchen, Holt and pop into the National Trust's Courts Garden. Then continue for 6 miles to Seend Cleeve for lunch at The Brewery Inn or The Barge Inn and then head south across the A361 (one of the main 18th-century roads between London and Bath), as you head to Salisbury Plain - one of the great wilderness areas of southern England. You'll ascend the ridgeway at Great Cheverell and then follow the gravel track of Imber Range Perimeter Path for 8 miles to Bratton Camp and the Westbury White Horse before a long descent to Upton Scudamore then to Farleigh Hungerford and the final descent to Bradford on Avon. Overnight For somewhere completely different, stay at The Farm Camp's bell tents and toast marshmallows under the stars.

DAY THREE

DILTON MARSH

The Wiltshire Way circles the county of Wiltshire for 160 miles over 16 sections. From Bradford on Avon cycle Section 1 to Dilton Marsh, a return distance of 21 miles (34km). Start with a slap-up breakfast at the Swan Hotel or avocado toast and harissa eggs at Timbrell's Yard then head south out of Bradford on Avon following the Wiltshire Way as it skirts the west of Trowbridge, via Westwood, Farleigh Hungerford, Rode and Rudge to Dilton Marsh, just west of Westbury. On your return back to Bradford on Avon, finish with a cake and a cuppa at Bridge Tea Rooms - this wonderfully wonky establishment is a double winner of the UK Tea Guild's 'Top Tea Place', and is a few minute's walk to Bradford on Avon's train station for your journey home.
